- acting as a portal to help spread engagement in GN and Vasculitis studies
- communicating with patient groups
- developing and nurturing collaborations with industry and academic partners
- providing peer review of project proposals
- supporting and help develop funding applications
- educating and training programmes.

Who we are:

We have an informal and inclusive membership from numerous renal units and welcome new members with an interest in glomerular disease. Research themes have evolved around specific glomerular disease areas linking to associated RaDaR and UKIVAS groups. We also have a strong educational component within the group, and hold national educational meetings led by Dr Allyson Egan, University of Cambridge.
